To Whom It May Concern

Buying property abroad is a real challenge for anybody when taking into account the location, type of property and of course the price. After choosing Portugal we embarked on the task of visiting numerous available apartments, houses and villas in the major tourist areas. None actually hit the spot until we ventured off the major tourist route and discovered Algoz and the development of Olival da Colina Verde!.

Here was something different in design and development, no large company or hard sell. Having met the actual development team their commitment and passion to their vision was impressive, when we saw the showhouse and development plans our search was finally over, it had the complete "WOW" factor.

Now some eighteen months later, we are more than delighted with are choice. The purchase process and eventual moving in was trouble free thanks to the help of Manny and Dina who are on site and deal patiently and professionally to all queries (no matter how minor).

The house was completed with a "difference" but in a mix of authentic, modern, attention to detail and quality which sets it apart from any other property viewed. As a result of the hands on approach from the developer and his team, the completion of the first phase is not only truly delightful, but true to the original plans and vision.

So as we sit by the beautiful pool overlooking my superb property, our thanks go out to all involved and for all those people still looking, try Olival da Colina Verde, I can truly recommend it.

Yours faithfully
